

Keeping the Nursing Home Environment Safe

Germs that can make us sick (pathogens) can hide and thrive in a nursing home environment.

A nursing home must ensure a safe “homelike” environment, one that is clean, comfortable, and allows residents to receive care and services safely and maximizes a resident’s independence.

A homelike environment includes one that allows resident personal items such as photos, artwork, and even personal furnishings. This supports the overall well-being of residents.

Resident and Family Action Steps

- You can help your nursing home community feel like home while also making sure it a safe, and clean place by:
 - Having personal items which make you feel happy and comfortable
 - Keeping personal items stored and uncluttered to prevent falls
 - Asking about and observing clean and disinfection practices

Nursing Home Environment Checklist

- I am encouraged by the nursing home to have personal items that make me feel at home and I am provided a place to store my items.
- The lighting and temperature are comfortable, allowing me to do the things I like to do everyday.
- Items and surfaces that are used in my care and in the nursing home which are touched frequently are cleaned and disinfected daily.
- Staff can explain to me who cleans and disinfects items and surfaces, how this is done, how often it is done, and how this process is monitored.
