

Resident Care Roles: Medical Services

Nursing home leadership and staff work together with residents, families, and other advocates to ensure the physical, mental, and social needs of all residents are met.

Quality care and preserving and promoting resident rights requires an open, supportive environment. Understanding key medical service positions and how you can work together is key!

Medical Services

- Medical Director: A licensed physician who advises the facility regarding resident care.
- Attending Physician: A licensed physician who is designated by the facility to provide primary treatment and care of residents. A resident has the right to select their own physician.
- Pharmacist: A licensed profession who reviews and manages medication, vaccinations, and provides counseling services related to medication.

Residents and Families: Key to Quality Care

- As a nursing home is a resident's home, residents, families, and other advocates can actively work with staff to make it a safe and comfortable environment:
 - Join or start a resident or family council. Facilities are required to assist and promote these councils.
 - Take part in the Quality Assurance and Process Improvement Program (QAPI). Facilities are required to have a QAPI program; residents, families, and other advocates are encouraged to find out how the QAPI improves care quality.

Residents have a right to quality care which cannot exist without preventing and controlling infections. When infections are not prevented and controlled, resident rights are impacted.
