

RAISE for Women in Academia

Resources, Advice, Insight, Support, and Empowerment

Let's RAISE each other up using telementoring.

Women in academic medicine face a myriad of challenges. While the representation of women in academic medicine is growing, women in academia face unique barriers to success. Inadequate mentorship, discrimination, and imbalanced work-life responsibilities contribute to career dissatisfaction, burnout, and ultimately under-representation of women in senior faculty and leadership roles.

To address these challenges, we are launching the RAISE for Women in Academia to connect women in the academic community with academic leaders and career development experts who will share practical guidance and support, covering topics relevant to professional growth. This telementoring program offers an interactive model for sharing knowledge, skills, and resources women need to thrive and lead in academia.

Each month, we will offer a brief didactic from content experts, a short 'case' presentation illustrating a challenge faced by women in academia, and an interactive discussion with panelists and participants.

Participation is free. All who identify as women in academia are welcome.
