

UNIVERSITY OF TEXAS AT SAN ANTONIO
DEPARTMENT OF SOCIOLOGY

The Department of Sociology at The University of Texas at San Antonio invites applications for two open-rank positions beginning Fall 2015 (One position in Medical Sociology and one position in Public Health). All applicants must provide evidence of a record of scholarly research and professional publications commensurate with the rank for which the application is made. Applicants are also encouraged to provide evidence of effective teaching and grant activity. Tenure is contingent upon Board of Regents approval.

Medical Sociology: The position is open to applicants at the assistant, associate, or full professor level. All applicants must have a Ph.D. in Sociology by August 31, 2015. Successful applicants will have the ability to teach courses in medical sociology. Additional areas of concentration are open. Areas of strength in the department include health, Latino/a studies, and religion. Preference may be given to scholars who can support the quantitative methods courses in the department, though applications from all qualified candidates are welcome.

Public Health: The position is open to applicants at the assistant, associate, or full professor level. All applicants must have a Ph.D. (or Dr. PH) in Public Health by August 31, 2015. Preference will be given to candidates with graduate level training in Sociology and a doctoral degree in Public Health. Successful applicants will have the ability to teach courses in our undergraduate curriculum in Public Health.

To be considered at the tenure-track Assistant Professor level, successful applicants must be able to articulate a research agenda, have an emerging record of publications, and demonstrate commitments to instructional excellence and departmental service. Ideal candidates will have participated in collaborative research, and will have had prior classroom experience as an instructor of record.

To be considered at the Associate or Full professor level, successful applicants must have an established research agenda for securing external grants, a strong record of publications, excellent teaching skills with demonstrated effectiveness, and a track record of service. Ideal candidates will have experience leading collaborative research projects, and demonstrate instructional effectiveness at the undergraduate and graduate levels, to include the mentoring of graduate students.

Responsibilities: The successful candidate is required to pursue an active research and publishing agenda, and to teach and mentor undergraduate and graduate students. Teaching assignments will be made at both the graduate and undergraduate levels.

Applicants should submit electronically in PDF format:

1. Letter of application that states applying position and rank, research interest, teaching experiences, and qualifications for the position
2. Current curriculum vita
3. Copy of graduate transcripts
4. One sample of written or published scholarly work

5. Two representative samples of syllabi for courses taught or proposed by the applicant
6. Teaching evaluations (if available or other evidence of course instruction)
7. Name and contact information for three references (to include name, address, telephone number, and email address) that are familiar with the applicant's work

Send electronic materials to: sociology@utsa.edu

Review of applications will begin on October 15, 2014 and will continue until the positions are filled.

UTSA is an Affirmative Action/Equal Opportunity Employer. Women, minorities, veterans, and individuals with disabilities are encouraged to apply. Applicants who are selected for interviews must be able to show proof that they will be eligible and qualified to work in the United States by time of hire.
